

Although our team did not seek any direct technical support from Team 30, based on their responses to other teams on piazza, it seems like their response time was very quick and their responses were quite helpful. Also, the explanations in their readme and in their code documentation were sufficient to understand their framework.